

A wide-angle photograph of a glacier lagoon. In the foreground, a dark, rocky shoreline curves along a body of water. Two small figures are standing on the shore, looking out at the scene. The middle ground is filled with numerous large, white icebergs of various sizes, some partially submerged. In the background, a range of mountains is covered in snow and ice, with deep shadows in the valleys. The sky is filled with heavy, dark clouds, with some lighter areas suggesting a setting or rising sun.

GENERAL INFORMATION ABOUT ICELAND

Iceland is a country of extreme geological contrasts. Widely known as “the land of fire and ice” Iceland is home to some of the largest glaciers in Europe, and some of the world’s most active volcanoes. Iceland is also the land of light and darkness. Long summer days with near 24-hours of sunshine are offset by short winter days with only a few hours of daylight.

The population of Iceland is 360,000. The capital is Reykjavík. The largest municipalities are Reykjavík* (130,000), Kópavogur* (36,000), Hafnarfjörður* (30,000), Akureyri (19,000) and Reykjanesbær (18,000).

The flag is blue with a red cross outlined in white. The colours are symbolic for Iceland: Red represents the volcanic fires, white recalls the snow and glaciers, and blue is for the skies above, the sea and the mountains.

The size is 103,000 km<sup>2</sup> (40,000 sq. miles) and the highest point is Hvannadalshnúkur peak at 2,110 m. The currency is the Icelandic Króna (plural Krónur) – ISK and the government is parliamentary constitutional republic. The main natural resources are fish, hydro-power and geothermal energy.
